

Noah Oppenheim Biography

Noah Oppenheim is the executive director of the Pacific Coast Federation of Fishermen's Associations and the Institute for Fisheries Resources. He has pursued a career at the intersection of fisheries industry, science, management, and policy for over eight years. Having worked as a commercial fisherman, a federal fisheries observer, and an oceans and natural resources staffer in the US House of Representatives, Oppenheim brings a well-rounded approach to the preservation of living marine resources and coastal communities to his work on West Coast sustainable fisheries. He earned a BA in biology from Reed College and two master's degrees in marine biology and marine policy from the University of Maine.
